Its special character and sacred purpose remove all objection to its location on this spot, which we may hope will some day not remote be occupied by elegant university buildings, as suggested by our greatest of all leaders, General Washington, whose propositions as to reservations were no doubt the guide of Major L'Enfant, the accomplished engineer who so skillfully and tastefully projected the beautiful plan of our loved city of Washington. I have a sketch of such a structure, made during leisure hours which in the hands of an able and experienced architect, and constructed of pure white marble, selected by men of judgment and experience in material, and carefully and solidly built under capable, faithful and incorruptible supervision, would give us one of the most elegant of our very attractive public buildings, if carefully guarded and preserved from the hand of the spoiler and desecrator who is so prone in our free country to lay hold of sacred objects to secure and speculate in valuable mementos.

The great elevation of the ground at this place, together with the height of the building, would make such a structure a very conspicuous object from all points within the District of Columbia, the nation's capital, destined to be the Mecca of the people of the United States of America and all intelligent and liberal travelers of the entire world. Our best architectural efforts are models, and were so declared by the distinguished man under whose care the Prince of Wales, now Edward VII. visited this city during Mr. Buchanan's term as President, 1857 to 1861. At a lecture by him in London soon after his return to England, he said, among other things impressing him, "When Europe wants a model for a capital, she will find a fitting one at Washington. This was a matter of publication in the newspapers of the day. If due care is taken in the planning, selection of materials and construc tion of our prominent buildings in the future, our city will undoubtedly be a very attractive place

From the investigation it was learned that Miller came from Oxon Hill while suffering from the disease and - ght work at several places, but without success. He then went to Congress Heights and took the street car there, and so came to the city. He was prevented from going inside one of the cars, it is said, because it was suspected he had the smallpox. Justice Wright and Dr. Simpson have quarantined the house of one Brown, colored, at Oxon Hill, where Miller is said to have stopped. A house-to-house canvass was made for the purpose of finding out with whom the sick man had come in contact, and places where the colored people assemble Sundays were visited. Justice Wright came to the police station at Anacostia and communicated his action to Clerk Ray for the information of the local authorities. SIXTEEN HUNDRED PRESENT. Large Attendance at Y. M. C. A. Meeting Yesterday Afternoon. Yesterday's meeting for men at Columbia Theater, under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association was fully up to the standard of the previous meetings in the twentieth century campaign, inaugurated six weeks ago. Sixteen hundred men were present and fully two hundred of them stood throughout the entire service. The meeting opened shortly before 4 o'clock with a song service under the leadership of Mr. Charles S. Clark, assisted by the association orchestra. Several baritone solos were sung with splendid effect by Dr. B. Merrill Hopkinson of Baltimore. The Scriptures were read by the speaker of the afternoon, Rev. John Timothy Stone of Baltimore, and prayer was of-fered by Rev. Donald C. MacLeod, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of this city. As a mark of respect for the late ex-President Harrison the hymn, "Nearer, My God, to Thee," was sung by the great audience of men. This hymn, it was said, was one of the ex-President's favorites.

Mr. Stone's address was upon the topic, 'Christ's Standard of Manhood." He after speaking several minutes, recalled that he had not yet announced his text. He orthwith read it from the first chapter of James, the twenty-second verse-"Be ye doers of the word and not hearers only, deceiving your own selves."

Mr. Stone said he had but a single purpose in coming to the meeting, and that was to bring the message that God loved every man there and desired his love and service. "The religion of Christ is the simplest kind of religion." he said. "It requires of each man and woman in the mittee will also consider the question of world the enthusiasm which will give over the whole life to His service. The speaker rapidly sketched the life of the martyr Stephen and the great apostle, by the party managers.

"Paul," he said, "was no coward. Paul was no weakling. He could suffer perse-cution and endure bondage in order that ne might preach the unsearchable riches of the Lord Jesus Christ. He had faced the great decision of his life and had power to give his life to God and live it to his honor and glory. Why is it, when God so needs men of thought and leadership that so few comparatively can be found who will own his cause. Men need to say, 'If I am anything for Christ, I am all for Christ.' Men are dving all around. They all want a God to die by-they need to have a God to live by if they would be prepared to die. The chance is not alone in men's circumstances or environment, it is in the men themselves." ington and Thomas F. Conroy of Virginia.

REPUBLICANS TO PARTICIPATE IN STATE POLITICS.

May Nominate Candidate for Governor-Statement by Chairman Agnew-General Matters.

Evening Star Bureau, No. 701 King Street Bell Telephone No. 106. ALEXANDRIA, Va., March 18, 1901.

Chairman Park Agnew of the state republican committee will leave here tomorrow for Richmond to preside at a meeting of the state committee, which will be held at 8 o'clock that evening. In conjunction with this gathering there will be a meeting of the state executive committee. The purpose for which these meetings are to be held, as heretofore stated in The Star, is to consider the advisability of placing candidates in the field for the state conlaunched into his subject earnestly, and stitutional convention. Chairman Agnew states that the question will probably be restricted to the counties in which the white population predominates, as it is considered almost useless to run candidates in the so-called "black belts." Mr. Agnew believes that the committee will decide in favor of naming party candidates with a view of securing at least a strong minority epresentation in the convention. In addition to the constitutional conven-

Southern Suffrage.

To the Editor of The Evening Star: I am a constant reader of your paper; am pleased at the stand you take in regard to the suffrage laws of the southern states. The attempt on the part of many to lessen the schooling of the colored race is simply to prevent their voting in future. The New York Sun states the truth in a concentrated form: This movement is to eliminate the republican vote. The few republican white voters might as well give up voting when the blacks are disfranchised. If we ever fire in the house of Mrs. A. R. Jewett, No. have honest elections in the south the reform must begin and continue with the white voters. This agitation sows the seeds of discord; the blacks are troubled and the most intelligent of them will leave and many of the white republicans, who are needed here, will leave. Except around some cities or mines there is little business, as many advantages are lacking, and to destroy a man's political rights and leave him-alone in all matters that pertain to citizenship will not retain or draw the better class of men. The papers tell us that the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments neutralize each other and that they do not protect the voter; also that the right to vote is a social right, etc. Now, if the intent of the voters of thirty states and the framing of those amendments by 300 or more statesmen is of no account, what is the use of elections? Why should we pay men to go to Washington and fool away money and time? should we have laws that only make it doubtful "where we are at?"

Many of us hope (our only hope) that these so-called laws are opposed to the Constitution and that Congress would give us our rights.

Order Changing Street Car Rules at Crossings Takes Effect. Street cars in this city now stop before crossing a street, in the event any one wants to get aboard. Up to yesterday morning those who desired to ride took positions on what is known as the far side of the crossings. Then the cars passed over the street before stopping for pas sengers. In other words, by order of the District Commissioners, the "near side" stop has been substituted for the far side stop, and this order went into effect yes-days after the average citizen has cars whiz past him as he stands on the far side, he will begin to realize the change that has been ordered by the District authorities-especially as he will be apt to learn more by signs than by words of direction that the motorman cannot stop until he gets to the next crossing. A band of red paint has been placed on each side of the railroad tracks at such street crossings as by order of the Commis doners the cars are required to be stopped whether or not there are passengers to ge on and off. This device is for the benefit of the motormen, who are thus informed that the fire department must have the right of way at that particular point, in

His friends say Mr. Gohen is subject to ertigo, and that as he was entering the church edifice he suffered an attack of the malady. He grasped the font, they say, to save himself from falling, and that he could have had no desire or intention of causing damage. He had been in the habit for a week of visiting the church each evening.
